

THE "NEW-YORK, PAST, PRESENT, and FUTURE," by E. PORTER BELDEN. The fifth edition of this excellent city hand-book, revived and posted up to the present time, has been issued by Prall, Lewis, & Co. It is a convenient and trust-worthy guide to the most important objects of interest in New-York, forming a book of reference which can scarcely be dispensed with by men of business, or by strangers visiting the city. A great variety of historical notices are combined with the statistical and local details, which give it the character of a per-

The inhabitants of St. Paul, Minnesota, entertained Governor Ramsey and his Secretary, Wilkin, at a public dinner, on Monday the 3d of November. The occasion was the return of the Governor from his Indian Mission, during which he succeeded in making so advantageous a treaty.

DIVORCES BY THE BUNDLE.—On Thursday last, twelve divorces were granted by the Court in Cincinnati. Three were on the petitions of the husbands—cause adultery, and nine on the petition of the wives, cause abandonment and adultery. In most of the latter instances and the custody of the children were granted.

As to the other-classes of the population, the aristocracy and the money-lords had disappeared, and the peasantry were busily engaged everywhere in removing down to the very last vestiges of feudalism. Thanks to the war in Italy, and the occupation which Vienna and Hungary gave to the Court, they were left at full liberty, and succeeded in their work of liberation, in Austria, better than in any other part of Germany. The Austrian Diet very shortly after had only to confirm the steps already practically taken by the peasantry, and whatever else the Government of Prince Schwartzberg may be enabled to restore, it will never have the power of re-establishing the feudal servitude of the peasant.

We have mentioned one source of slavery. Another and a more fruitful one is war. Every captive taken in war becomes thereby a slave forever. The victor can hold him or sell him at his pleasure. And in general the plea that he ified! No, they were not. The cry was, we are Americans, and must have a civil Governor. The denunciations against the troops were loud and incessant. At last they were favored with a civil Governor in the person of James S. Calhoun. The day of his inauguration was a great day in the city of Charleston. He was greeted and escorted by all spirits if they could tell who I had in my mind, and received a very prompt reply in the affirmative. I requested them to spell the name; and the name which I was thinking of (Clary) was, without the least hesitation, spelled out.
